PRESIDENT WILSON GIVES U. S. PEACE TERMS

Masterful Message by Executive to Congress Outlines Aims and Points Out Peace Path

- Open covenants, openly arrived at, with no ensuing secret treaties.
- Freedom of the seas in peace and war, except as closed by international action for enforcement of international covenants.
- Trade equally among nations consenting to the peace.
- Reduction of armaments.
- Impartial adjustment of colonial claims, with regard for the voice of the inhabitants.
- Evacuation of all Russian territory and assurance of her unhampered opportunity for political and economic developments.
- Evacuation and restoration of Belgium.
- Evacuation of French territory and righting the wrong done France by Prussia in 1817.
- Readjustment of Italian border along lines of nationality.
- Autonomous development for Austria-Hungary.
- Evacuation and restoration of Rumania, Serbia and Montenegro, with access to the sea for Servia, and relations of the several Balkan States to be determined by friendly counsel.
- Sovereignty for Turkish portions of the Ottoman empire, with autonomy for other nationalities now under Turkish rule, and permanent freedom of the Dardanelles.
- An independent Poland with access to the sea.
- A league of nations to enforce specific covenants.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—In terms specific and unquestionable, President Wilson today stipulated before a joint session of congress the aims for which America is now fighting. This country, he said, will continue the struggle until these are achieved.

It was the "compelling voice of the Russian people," asking a definition of America's "principles and purposes," that prompted the president to speak today. And it was largely to Russia that his speech was directed.

He struck out at the sinister activities of the Germa rulers, demanded the light of all future negotiations and treaties and held resolute to his stand for territorial adjustments that will insure peace.

Immediate attention is called to the fact and its significance that the presdent did not include elimination of the Hohenzollern dynasty as a war aim. But he laid down emphatically. the necessity of all future treaties and agreements made in the open. Regarding the Russian-German parlours at Brest-Litovsk, the president said the incident is "full of significance and perplexity."

KAISER'S CROWN IS PERILED BY PEACE DEMANDS

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 8—Political chaos engulfs Berlin.

A gap yawns between the militarists and the anti-annexationists. Late tonight there were the strongest indications that the Kaiser faces the inescapable choice between two courses:

To authorize complete breakdown by the Central Powers on the Russian demand to evacuate all occupied territories. That would mean the immediate resignations of Hindenburg and Ludendorff, resulting in depression among the Teuton armies and a possible pan-German uprising.

To take up the challenge of the Socialists and Liberals for a finish fight on the annexation issue by standing pat on the Brest-Litovsk peace terms. That would mean a break up of the Reichstag majority.

ALL ALIEN GERMANS ARE BEING LISTED

One hundre German alien enemies, were listed by the office force of Sheriff Veale Friday, in compliance with the Federal order rerceived. The government has called for a list of all German residents of this county, over the age of 14 years who have not been naturalized.

The work of listing these people is continuing and it is expected that there will be about 100 more added to the list when it is finally complet-

As far as this work has progressed, there are more alien Germans in the interior parts of the county than in Richmond. The industrial plants of this city are lending all possible aid to the authoritties in the classificatiin.

This listing of the alien enemies is not a final registration. The government plans for a complete register of all these people and it is believed that this registration will be made on or about the 5th of February. It is believed that the listing now being done is preliminary to the registration that is coming.

Local Merchants Aid Government

A recent letter to L. Dearborn, Secretary of the Merchant's Association of Richmond, from C. R. Winslow, Secretary of the United States Food Administration, commends the merchants on their resolve to assist the Administration by getting local food buyers to conserve. They plan to eliminate all forms of speculation and unnecessary service, which will permit them to reduce to a minimum their selling price to a consumer.

Rules for the sale of sugar, flour and other commodities are made clear through the medium of circulars to local merchants. Sugar can only be sold in 2 and 5 pound lots and flour in one-tighth and one-fourth barrell amounts, with exceptions to those who live sime distance from the source of supply.

CONSCRIPTION AS VIEWED BY WORKINGMEN

The News interviewed a number of Richmond workingmen last evening, around Labor Temple and elsewhere, as to their opinion of the proposed Government move to conscript a million or more mechanics for war work, and was somewhat surprised to note that they displayed no particular antagonism to it. In fact, a number of them expressed the opinion that it might be a good thing, and that as far as they were concerned they would as soon work for Uncle Sam as anybody else.

They said that they dd not fancy any kind of conscription, but that as long as several millions of men had to go to the front and endure the hardships of war, the one who got caught in a draft to go to work at his trade at good wages had all the best of it.

One said that while it would do away with the right to strike or walkout, there would not be any causes for anything of that sort, as the Government was living up to union rules in the main and paying top noth wages.

Several said it would not be necessary to draft them, as they would enlistt.

Yesterday's dispatchese stated that 3,000,000,000 men would probazly be mobilized o work as mechanics, shipbuilders, on farms and in other lines, but mostly mechanics. It is though that mobilization will accomplish the desired object, withou resorting to conscription.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT ARMY BOARDS DIFFER

Is the opinion of local doctors or the opinion of the army doctors to be taken regarding the men who have been returned from Camp Lewis because of physical disabilities? This is the question asked by those who were returned when they again found their names on the draft lists under the new system in Class One, which is to be called into the service at once. The fact that they have been once rejected by the army doctors is not supposed to figure because the claim is made that the physical disabilities may be only temporary.

On the other hand, the men who have beene called and rejected claim that those who have not been called should be taken in their place and that they be placed on a reserve list to be called later.

Chairman Levi Boswell, of the local board stated last evening that no hard and fast rule has ever been made regarding this matter and that individual cases should stand on their own evidence until such a rule is made.

The San Rafael Board met Monday and upheld the ruling of the Marin board in placing married mon without families in a high classification, making them subject to an early call. The only exception will be made when the wife is not able to work. Many boards object to this ruling, but the action of the district board make is a permanent policy.

S. P. CHIEF OPPOSES THE CONTINUED SEIZURE OF LINES

Testifying today before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, the chairman of the Southern Pacific board of directors asserted that the Governments and avoid all the liabilities of railroad ownership by leaving the roads to their present owners after the war.

He suggested two conditions on which the roads could, under private control, do as well as they could under Government ownership.

These were unification into a single system by Government direction and elimination by the Government of the anti-pooling section of the anti-trust laws.

BERKELEY TO HAVE AFFINITY BUREAU

Charging the high cost of living with direct responsibility for the alarming increase in the number of divorce suits filed with the last year, Mrs. W. T. Cleverdon, chairman of the Berkeley Citizens, Committee, declares that the protection of the home demanded that the club women take steps to stamp out the "affinity" epidemic which is now sweeping the east bay district.

After a careful study of the statistics of Alameda county, which show one divorce for every three marriage licenses, Mrs. Cleverdon proposes the establishment of an "affinity" bureau," under the auspices of the women's organization to hear and to act in cases of husband stealing.

The plan includes the establishment of court where neglected wives who now foolishly suffer in silence might relate, without notoriety, their troubles.

Dead Man Listed As Army Slacker

The local exemption board states that it has no official knowledge of the death of Herbert Lang and has listed as a slacker. Lang was one of Richmond's best known young men and his death was recently announled in the loral papers. Lists for the local papers from the government also list him as not reported.

Well, it should be corrected, anyhow, for Lang is dead, and if alive he would be no slacker—quite the contrary.

LOTTERY MAN GETS SHORT SENTENCE

Police Judge Oppenheim of San Francisco yesterday sentenced Annives Erotokito, a lottery ticket peddler, to forty-eight hours in jail for distributing tickets of the new M. and F. Company.

Testimony showed that he was selling the lottery tickets south of Market street when he was arrested.

"Lotteries can never operate openly or secretly in San Francisco again" said Judge Oppenhem.

"This court intends to send men who are convicted to jail and not merely to fine them."

RUSS AND TEUTONS STILL WHIPSAWING

AMSTERDAM, Jan 8—Bolsheviki Foreign Minister Trotsky arrived at Brest-Litovsk and peace negotiations are to be resumed this afternoon, according to Berlin dispatches today.

LONDON, Jan. 8—Whether Germany's liberals, now for the first time reported united in opposition to the German government will do anything more than criticise the autocracy's scheme of annexations concealed in the Russo-German peace negotiations was the subject of widest speculation here today.

GERMANS MASSING FOR GREAT DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—A gigantic German thrust on the west front—possiby their greatest assault during he war—is impending, Secretary of War Baker n his weekly military review today.

In the great battle, the Germans, Baker said, "may be counted upon to strain every fiber of their remaining strength in an endeavor to make their plans succeed."

The delay in the assault, predicted weeks ago by the German press and allied war chiefs has been due to the time necessary for constructon of "large troops masses adequate artillery and ample reserves of munitions."

$400,000,000 SAVING TO TOE RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—Director General McAdoo plans on saving $400,000,000 annually in federal operation of the railroads. Sweeping economies will be inaugurated immediately after passage of the rail control bill now being considered by Congressional committees. These economies are expected to net more than sufficient money to pay the increases to be granted railroad workers.

MIGHT IS RIGHT, SAYS GEN. VON LIEB

ZURICH, Jan 8.—We must recognize only one principle, that might is right and must know neither sentiment nor consideration of humanity or compassion, said General von Lieb in a speech before the Conservative congress, in which he declared Germany must have Courland, Belgium and northern France. The speech, according to the dispatches received here today, was delivered before the congress meeting at Halle, Prussia.

"We will incorporate Courland, bringing in sixty million Russians, and the Slav nightmare will then ride us ne longer, General von Lieb asserted. We must have Belgium and northern France, he continued. The curse of God s upon the French Portuguese possessions must disappear. France must pay until bled white.

LOAN SHARKS WORK AMONG SOLDIERS

Warning against scores of loan sharks, declared to be at work at the Presidio, Camp Fremint and elsewhere throughout the State, has been issued at Western Army headquarters.

Army commanders have been instructed to take every possible step to halt the loan evil and the cooperation of civil authorities has been requested.

Soldiers holding liberty bonds are said to be the chief victims of the loan sharks. Loans of $50 or $75 are made on a $100 bond at a rate of interest varying from 10 to 20 per cent, army officers say.

THE WORLD WANTS PEACE

There is no question but what the peoples of the whole world are war weary and desire peace, and that most of them are willing to make some concessions to obtain it. This includes the German people, and probably includes even the German Imperial Government.

It is only natural and to be expected that in the bringing about of peace after such a terrible war as this has been, the worst in the history of the world, that all belligerents should try to obtain the best peace terms possible. No one side or the other is alone in that. They will all try it. Also, each will set forth a lot of terms that it does not expect to get by with, with the intention of training and traffic around the green table and jockying for place. That is diplomacy.

The United States, speaking of and for the people as a whole, never did want a war, and does not want it now. All of us, with the exception of the munition makers and others who profit by war, would be very glad to welcome a peace tomorrow, or today providing, of course, that it can be obtained with honor and with due regard to what forced us into the war.

We should also stay by our allies, up to a reasonable extent and as long as they are clearly within their just rights, and that we will do, but there is a limit to all things, including what may be demanded in a peace settlement. If treaty rights can be made that all must respect; freedom of the seas guaranteed and be made safe; Belgium restored and France made whole, that is about all the interest the United States has in the game of war.

Russia backed out and layed down, and sold her allies, including the United States to the enemy. There is no doubt of this as far as the old regime of the czar was concerned; and since then there has been nothing but craziness and anarchy to deal with. We do not see that this country is called upon to protect Russia's interests at all. We do not see that we need bother our heads about whether they are under German control or any other old control. Probably any kind of control would be better for them than none at all, as they have now.

Neither do we see that we should keep on warring over a lot of Balkan troubles and things like that. This country should not be expected to empty all the swill barrels of Europe. Frankly, we have little interest as to a lot of Turks and other semi-savages over there who have never done anything in their lives but raise hell and all other known kinds of trouble.

Germany should be forced to reimburse France and Belgium, and to get back into her own territory and stay there, and until that is done we should keep right on fighting the Kaiser and his miserable brood of militarists until they are forced to do those very things. But once they show a willingness to do that, then the war should end, and the diplomats of Europe should, gather together and wash their own dirty linen—linen that has never been anything else but dirty.

Elsewhere in this paper are the peace plans outlined to our Congress by President Wilson. The Premier of England has spoken along much the same lines. It is likely that some minor concessions will have to be made or war will drag on many years. It is also likely that the Central Powers are ready right now to make concessions. The fact that they keep putting out new peace offers would indicate that.

All in all the appearences are that an effort may be made ere long to call a halt in the butchery and talk it all over. This is as it should be, and the quicker the better.

The German people and the German rulers must realize by this time that the longer the war is prolonged the worse it is going to be for them, and the harder the settlement to make, and this being true there is every reason to believe that a peace parley will be brought about before very long, and that out of it will come some plan under which a settlement can be made to which all can agree with honor.

If, on the other hand, Germany is only bluffing and sparring for time, and does not intend to right the greater of the wrongs it has perpetrated against humanity, then we are in favor of fighting her to a standstill, if it takes the rest of our lives.

The way some people save for a rainy day, they must be expecting a flood.

It is possible to acqire a reputation for wisdom by knowing when to keep still.

Why should a man mind his own business when so many are eager to run it for him?

The court may hesitate to convict you on circumstantial evidence but people are different.

The type of man who always thinks he knows everything usually doesn't know anything.

A leader is often one who figures which way the people are going and gets ahead of them.

"Clever Mrs. Carfax" at T. & D. Today

Julian Eltinge is the new screen star that everyone is talking about, his film debut having been at the Rialto Theatre, New York City, recently in "The Countess Charming," when he ket the S. R. O. sign iut on that theatre for a whole week.

Known t tothe theatrical world as its greatest feminine impersonator Julian Eltinge is now surpassing that record on the screen and "The Clever Mrs. Carfax is even funnier than "Cousin Lucy", "The Crinoline Girl," in "The Fascinating Widow."

The story contains all the elements of mystery, thrill, fun and adventure necessary to success and as Temple Trask and Mrs. Carfax, Eltinge gets away with a dual role that is as safe to state, no one else could have don. At the Richmond Theatre today and tomorrow.

In spite of the fact that his gowns have been copied by a million women, Julian Eltinger is a Man's Man—and a good fellow. He appeals to all. He has the strange power to appear the daintiest, the most graceful the most alluring of any group of women he happens to be in when in make-up—and that without becoming effeminate in real life.

Jakie Saunders, the fascinating little "tomboy of the screen," whose native combativeness is the theme of some of her best photoplay productions but whose ability to furnish contrast by her innocent trustfulness on occasion, is one of the prime favorites of army and navy men in concentration camps where motion pictures are popular.

Jackie Saunders,
Horkheimer-Mutual Star

Adventurlusness is one of Miss Jackie's principal assets Is there a river tto cross. She had rather swim it than walk over a bridge. Confronted with a plowed field when trying to reach a bit of good road in her motor car, she tools her machine over the rough breaking, only to be confronted with a ditch on the far side. Promptly she improvises a military bridge and reaches the main road right side up.

Miss Saunders' latest production, "A Bit of Kindling," affords her plenty of opportunities for the display of her adventurous disposition It is Mutual-Horkheimer play with a corking plot.

ACCESSORIES IN SETS NOW

Scarf, Muff, Hat and Bag, All Made Up to Match in Fur and Velvet, Are Popular.

For the last few seasons there has been a tremendous vogue for accessories of dress in sets. And this year the vogue is just as persistent as ever.

There are sets of scarf, muff, hat and bag. These are usually made up of fur and velvet. The elaborate ones are for afternoon wear.

There are also charming sets for skating, consisting of a skating bag, a cap, and a muffler. One of these is made of bright plaid velvet, trimmed with seal. The muffler is wide and is banded at each end with a strip of the seal, from which three big seal balls dangle. The little cap is made with a shaped—or rather gored—crown of velvet, and an upstanding, snug brim of seal.

Another interesting set shows a hat with a wide black velvet brim and a crown of woven chenille in various bright colors. The scarf is made of black velvet, with an embroidered band of chenille at each end.

Then there is a little set consisting of a bag and hat. The crown of the hat is made of figured silks, and the brim is of mink. The bag, of an unusual shape, is of the silk, with trimming banks of the mink.

CAMISOLES IN SUIT SHADES

The latest development in camisoles is in the deep shades, now being shown in satin as well as the glove silk. Those of glove silk are shaped at the shoulders with straps of the material, and come in all of the street shades to match ankle-length bloomers.

The satin bodies are being shown chiefly in rose and Copenhagen, cut straight across with ribbon shoulder straps. Wide Dresden ribbon in dark colors is employed to form the tops of these camisoles.

The object of the deeper shades of course is to supply a lining for sheer waists in suit colors, and it is said that in many cases a georgette blouse is worn over a bodice of contrasting color, such as dark blue over a suitable shade of green.

PRETTY COAT FOR TOT

SOME DRESS HINTS

Hats are made of panne velvet.

Shiny leather bags are favorites.

Toques are made of white satin.

Some toques are high and narrow.

Sash ends are finished with beaded tassels.

Necklines are on the whole rather severe.

The proper coiffure must cover the ears.

Princess dinner gowns are made of velvet.

Evening wraps have huge collars of fur.

Gray and tan are favored for dress shoes.

Toques are sometimes made of jersey cloth.

ORIENTAL TREND SEEN IN CLOTHES

SASH OF MUCH IMPORTANCE

Often Serves as the Connecting Link Between a Blouse of One Material and Skirt of Another—Some Have Bibs.

New York.—Find out where the bulge is and you find where the fashion is. This was the opinion of an artist who studied movement and color and knew nothing of the practical side of apparel. "Throughout the centuries of dress," he continued, "the student who deals only with the history of fashions will find that the entire difference rests in the bulge, its presence, its absence and its placement."

One could write chapters dealing with the bulge that has gone through centuries of fashion. A skirt goes out at the hips and in at the ankle, out at the ankle and in at the hips; sleeves flare at the elbow, the shoulder or the wrist; collars rise outward from the neck, flare over the shoulders, roll downward to the collarbone.

The bulge is so all-important that a woman is hopelessly out of fashion unless she follows its movements. She may wear the wrong color, compromise on a fabric that is slightly out of fashion or combine materials that were not intended for each other at their sources, but she will not put a bulge where a bulge should not be. She will work overnight, be extravagant and lose her temper merely to avoid wearing a skirt that goes out in the wrong place, a sleeve that flares where it should not, a hipline that is concave when it ought to be convex.

What in common garden English we call "the bulge," the French more elegantly term "the movement." It is interesting and puzzling to those who go to Paris the first time and hear the discussion of dress in the ateliers of those who design and sell clothes, to hear the two words—"the movement"—punctuate every sentence.

If the movement of a gown is right, or if a celebrated designer, through the hands and the fabric, brings a new movement into an accomplished result, the whole fashion of the season is changed.

The Bias Movement.

The different curves which clothes have taken during the last two years are too familiar to women's minds to recount them.

And these women, who watch the development of line in clothes more than the introduction of new colors or fabrics, are now interested in that oriental movement which is trailing over the horizon and which we frequently call bias.

The world has always accredited the Orient with the lines that go across and around the figure. The primitive peoples are supposed to have wrapped their clothes about them for centuries, and the sensuousness of the East is supposed to be the origin of this bias movement of fabric on the female figure.

The straight line conceals; the bias line partly reveals. The American Indian is probably the only great primitive who kept to the straight line in costumery, as if it were done in accordance with the Indian physical framework.

RANGE IN BLOUSES

Garments Suited to All Sorts of Costumes and Purposes.

Smart Models in Velvet and Satin Are Straight and Short, to Be Worn Outside Skirts.

The blouses are charming this year, full of originality, greatly varied, suited to all sorts of costumes and purposes, picturesque, formal, elaborate, simple, frivolous, severe.

The usual simple models in white, flesh-color or suit-color georgette, chiffon, crepe de chine, satin and tub silks are to be seen, and extremely good looking some of them are. Many of them, even in the sheerest georgette, have a tailored air so far as line and finish go.

Fur-Edged Blouse of Satin.

Smart little models, straight and short, to be worn outside the skirt are made up in velvet and in satin and are delightful where the wearer is slender enough of hip to stand the widening given to the figure by this utter elimination of waist and hip curves. One of these blouses was in a deep old blue satin embroidered in narrow bands of rich warm Oriental colors and narrowly bordered by fur. Another was in brown velvet embroidered in brown and gold.

A trifle longer than these models, a trifle more shapely and with long sleeves held in by a cuff in place of the short open sleeve of the blue satin and the brown velvet blouses is a blouse of creamy white satin delicately embroidered in gold.

Still longer—some reaching to the knees—are tunics of satin or velvet or lace or chiffon, some of them richly embroidered, some trimmed only by other material in the same color or by effective sash girdles.

The plain long velvet tunics with wide sashes of metallic brocade or of handsome colored brocade are often very effective, and stunning things are done by the blouse makers with metallic laces.

Practically all of these tunic blouses, short or long, are of the slipover variety, slipping on over the head and opening down the front only just enough to allow this.

KNITTED TRIMMING IS USED

Employed as a Novelty on Woolen Coats and Also on Some New Blouses of Georgette Crepe.

Apparently women have all grown so used to knitting that they just cannot stop doing it. At least, one is justified in such an inference from the number of knitted accessories and the forms of knitted trimming one sees. To begin with, the vogue of the knitted wool sweater is by no means finished. Women stop in their war work of making socks and mufflers now and then to knit a sweater for themselves of some gay yarn.

Perhaps the newest thing is the woolen coat with trimmings of knitted yarn. Some of these coats are very smart. They are expensive, too, for, of course, the knitted work is hand done, and they are also a novelty.

Some of the new blouses of Georgette crepe are embroidered in wool of various colors—quite effective, too.

Another novelty is the Georgette blouse with collar and cuffs of knitted worsted. The collar is of the stand-up and turn-over variety and it is held neatly snug with a band of black velvet or ribbon. The cuffs are elastic, of course, and cling closely to the wrists. A blouse of flesh-colored Georgette has collar and cuffs of bright blue and yellow.

The Tip-Toe Drape Coming.

A new idea is being featured in misses' suits this coming season, a tip-toe idea which is obtained by the arrangement of the fullness at the back. It is not a bustle, not even a bustle arrangement, but is a different drape, and adds a style to the figure which heretofore has been absent. The suit coats average 30 inches in the back, with uneven bottoms. These bottoms may be rounded, pointed or scalloped, but the smartness still remains.

One model suggested a Norfolk coat style, but the fastening was made by drawing the belt through the coat fronts and fastening, thus allowing the front of the coat itself to be open. Pleats are used on these models and are laid in groups and add to the style lines.

Local Laconics

Julius Stiefvater says he has just received some of the very latest 1918 styles of Dill pickles. That man is the limit.

Clyde Morgan, foreman of the News, who has been sick for some time, will take a month off at his old home in Monterey. This will also take our linotype operator, Mrs. Morgan, but we trust they can both show up again soon, which they will if healtth permits. Two new men take their places until then. We have eight people employed in the office now, and sometimes nine, beside the gang of newsies. It's a busy place.

Glad to see Overa getting along with that cement basement walls of the new T. & D. theatre. That cellar hole was getting tto be an eyesore.

We suggested to Councilman Jim Long that he run for the legislature again this year, and, say, do you know what that man said to us? Well, we can't print it—it would break the press.

Contractor Page got into a little mixup last evening with a Standard Oil workman, and from all reports got considerably the worst of it. Later on last night he refused to be interviewed about it by a News reporter.

The News has a supply of garden and flower seeds to give away, as long as they last. They were sent to us, two mail sacks full, by Congressman Chas. F. Curry, who writes that what we cannot plant on the 2x4 ranch to give to the Richmond friends. Come in and help yourself. They are the best kind, and free, and you know there is not much that is free nowdays.

Better be looking into the question of your income tax. Most everybody will have to file a statement, whether exempt or not.

Duck season will end within a month. Critics say that this has been the poorest season in twenty years, there being practically no birds flying on the coast. All are over in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, in the rice and wheat fields, and only there have nimrods had any shooting.

The names of many women of Richmond are on the list now being prepared by Supervisor Zeb Knott of people to be called as trial jurors in the Superior Court of this county during the coming year. The list will be submitted in two weeks.

M. L. McNeill, a local milk dealer, is petitioning the city council for the return of $52 which Pound-master Frank Meader collected from him some time ago as penalties for letting his cows run loose. Thirteen cows were impounded at one time.

A new city ordinance will probably be read at the next meeting of the council as the result of a conference between members of the merchants association and members o the city council relative to increasing the cost of a licens for outside retail peddlers who do business in Richmond.

Lieutenant T. H. DeLap left yesterday for Philadelphia, where he will enter upon detailed training work. DeLap was formerly an attorney in Richmond.
